

Maureen MacConnell PMHNP-BC, PSY-M, MA OLL is a global mental health advisor providing services in over sixty countries and across the traveler's lifespan. She has advanced degrees in Clinical Psychology from The Chicago School of Professional Psychology, Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing from Yale University, and Organizational Leadership and Learning from George Washington University. With a passion for decentralizing mental health techniques to enhance emotional well-being during travel, her expertise ranges from candidate selection and accommodation frameworks for individuals diagnosed with mental health conditions, navigation of psychiatric response in overseas environments, as well as medical evacuation and repatriation needs. Maureen is the Mental Health Director for Cornerstone Safety Group, which supports travelers and staff in the experiential education and travel industries. In addition, Maureen serves as a Psychiatric Nurse Practitioner for the US Peace Corps. She is also a member of the International Society of Travel Medicine and is the current Chair of the Psychological Health of Travelers Steering Committee.